BACKGROUND

Raghav Madhan, an exceptional swimmer, recently secured a gold medal at the Berlin Olympics, showcasing unwavering determination. However, beyond the pool, he grapples with social isolation due to his hearing deficiency. The inability to communicate effectively with those around him leaves him feeling profoundly lonely. His struggle underscores the importance of accessibility and understanding for individuals facing similar challenges. 🏊🏆👂

PROBLEM

-Despite remarkable progress in technology, close to 500 million people worldwide continue to grapple with the isolating effects of hearing loss.

-Limited access to sign language resources perpetuates feelings of exclusion and disconnect, particularly for those navigating linguistic barriers.

SOLUTION

- Introducing SignLink: A transformative mobile application poised to revolutionize communication for the hearing impaired.
- By seamlessly translating sign language into text in real time, SignLink serves as a lifeline, bridging the chasm between individuals with hearing impairments and the world around them.
